Which Addreſſes His Majeſty was pleaſed to receive very graciouſly.

Hambourg, Oct. 25. On the 19th Inſtant the Trenches were opened before Stralſund with good Succeſs; and Letters of the 23d from the Confederate Army tell us the Approaches were advanced very near to the Swediſh Intrenchments. On the 21ſt the Troops deſigned for the Deſcent on Rugen, began to March to Eldena near Gripſwalde, where Boats lay ready for their Imbarkation.

Bruſſels, Oct. 21. Mr. Cadogan arrived at this Place laſt Night from the Hague, and immediately diſpatched proper Perſons to Bruges and Oſtend, to provide Shipping for the Tranſportation of 6000 Men which the States-General have reſolved to furniſh for the Service of the King of Great Britain, purſuant to the Treaty of Guarantie for the Proteſtant Succeſſion, and the Barrier of the United Provinces. Mr. Cadogan was this Morning in Conference with Count Koningſeck, and they both deſign to go to Morrow to Antwerp, where the States Deputies are expected on the 23d, in order to renew the Conferences for ſettling the Treaty of Barrier.

Antwerp, Octob. 29. Mr. Cadogan and Count Koningſeck came hither from Bruſſels on the 22d, and have ſince had ſeveral Conferences with the Deputies of the States General on the Affair of the Barrier. Yeſterday M. Geldermalſen one of the States Deputies ſet out for the Hague; he is to return in 8 Days, and 'tis believed the Barrier-Treaty will be ſigned in a few Days after. The 6000 Men which the States General are to furniſh for the Service of his Britannick Majeſty, are expected in a very few Days at Oſtend, where Shipping and all other Neceſſaries are prepared for their Imbarkation.

Edingburgh, October 19. The Rebels having quitted the Citadel of Leith on Sunday Morning, marched to Seton-Houſe, in ſuch Diſorder that ſome Horſe being ſent out after them took ſeveral Priſoners and picked up many Deſerters. The ſame Day his Grace the Duke of Argyle receiving Advice that the Earl of Mar and the Rebels with him were marching from Perth, he returned on Monday to Sterling to obſerve their Motions; leaving 100 Dragoons and a like Number of Foot of thoſe which had been detached from Sterling, under the Command of Major-General Wightman, to join with the Volunteers and Militia for the Security of this Place. The Rebels continued at Seton-Houſe till this Morning, when they marched towards the South. Letters from Fife relate, that the Parties ſent out by the Earl of Mar had committed great Diſorders in that Shire; particularly that a Party went to Leſly the chief Seat of the Earl of Rothes, where after ſearching the Houſe for Arms, they forced open the Church-doors, and finding no Arms there they broke into the Burial-Place of the Family of Rothes and digging up the Ground tore open the Coffins in the moſt barbarous manner. 'Tis reported that the Earl of Mar is advanced towards Dumblaine; but the River Forth not being paſſible, it is not doubted that if he march round by the Head of it the Duke of Argyle will give him a good Reception, for before that time his Grace will be reinforced by Evans's and Wightman's Regiments from Ireland, and by ſome Militia and Volunteers from about Glaſgow.

Berwick, October 21. We have an Account from Wooler in the County of Northumberland, that the Rebels of that County,
